Barrington, RI — FuelBelt, Inc. is pleased to announce that top triathletes Hillary Biscay, Heather Gollnick, Ronnie Schildknecht and Ironman World Champion Chrissie Wellington have joined its impressive team of athletes. Biscay is this year's Ironman Wisconsin champion, Gollnick is a five time Ironman champion and the 2008 U.S. Long Course National Champion. Schildknecht has won both Ironman Switzerland and Switzerland 70.3 races two years in a row, and enjoyed a personal best 4th place in Kona this year. Wellington remains undefeated at the Iron distance in her young career, with back-to-back wins in Kona for 2007 and 2008 among other Ironman races, and is the 2008 ITU Long Course World Champion.

“We're thrilled to welcome these athletes to the FuelBelt family,” FuelBelt President Vinu Malik said. “Each one of them is already accomplished yet still have their best races ahead of them. Besides that, Hillary, Heather, Ronnie and Chrissie are just great people to work with and are great for the sport of triathlon.”

The four athletes join an already impressive team including 2008 Ironman World Champion Craig Alexander, Chris McCormack, Bek Keat, Rutger Beke, Lisa Bentley, Cameron Brown, Chris Lieto and a host of other Ironman champions and up-and-coming athletes alike. Each athlete on the FuelBelt team recognizes the need to stay hydrated on the bike and run, and most chose to use FuelBelt products independently before joining the team. •
